Autrey Mill Board of Directors

The success of a species or a natural community lies in its ability to adapt to changes. This past year has taught us that organizations, too, must embrace change in order to survive and thrive. With the support of donors, a successful camp season, and a virtual fundraising event, we remained able to offer exceptional educational opportunities for our community.

About Autrey Mill

The Autrey Mill Nature Preserve and Heritage Center of today was built under the leadership and vision of the board, its talented staff, and local government officials. Identified as a potential nature preserve by Fulton County in 1972 but not purchased, advocates stepped up when zoning threatened the property in 1987. This grassroots effort saved the woodland's unique environment and the site of the old "Autrey" grist mill. It also prevented demolition of the historic buildings on the property. The vital help of generous public and private supporters and the indispensable work of volunteers were key to the organization's success. The group established a tax deductible 501(c)3 nonprofit association and signed their first lease to operate in September 1988.

Upon the incorporation of the City of Johns Creek in 2006, Autrey Mill officially became a city park and preserve. This created a unique partnership that supports the roles of the Autrey Mill Nature Preserve Association.

Autrey Mill's mission is to create a destination and educational resource to inspire exploration, appreciation, and preservation of the natural environment and local history. The Association is a proud steward of the preserve, historic buildings, and provide all the environmental, heritage, and event programming offered to the public.

A squirrel is clinging to a cylindrical bird feeder. The feeder is filled with seeds and has a green top and bottom. The squirrel is positioned vertically, with its head at the bottom and its tail at the top. The background is a soft, out-of-focus green, suggesting a natural outdoor setting.

Our mission: to create a destination and educational resource that inspires exploration, appreciation, and preservation of local history and the natural environment.
